When should a kidney patient start thinking about transplant?

EDUCATE YOURSELF NOW!

A pre-emptive transplant, before dialysis is needed, is the gold standard of care for kidney patients. It is never too early to think about transplantation. The more you know, the better you can navigate the process when, or if you need a transplant.

TALK TO YOUR FAMILY & FRIENDS!

It also helps to talk to your loved ones about the fact you may need a kidney in the future, so everyone has time to think about how they can help you, or look into their compatibility, before the situation becomes urgent.

If at all possible, you want to avoid dialysis!
